POSITION: The Director of Public Affairs and Communications is the chief publicist and public information officer for California State University, Bakersfield. The director is responsible for managing university media relations and for creating and placing messages of strategic value to CSUB in media channels that reach high-value audiences targeted by the university. This is a senior management position reporting to the Vice President for University Advancement. The director serves as a member of the management team of the Vice President for University Advancement.

Guided by the university's vision, strategic plan, and strategic communications goals and priorities the director develops and executes a coherent communications strategy and marketing plan to shape and manage CSUB’s image, build awareness of the university, promote its interests and programs, and position it in its region. On a day-to-day basis, the director is expected to manage both the media and public relations activities of the Advancement
Office. This entails breaking-news management, proactive news planning/pitching, and longer range planning to strategically position stories based on analysis of external publications and media focus, calendars, and opportunities, as well as serving as primary campus spokesperson. To meet these responsibilities, the director manages and provides direction for a public affairs coordinator/writer. Together, they are responsible for a range of internal and external communications including news releases, interviews, announcements and advisories, the university magazine (Your CSUB), and a variety of other publications including the President’s Annual Report, community viewbooks and student recruitment materials. The director not only oversees the planning and production of these communications, ensuring that they meet journalistic as well as university strategic communications standards, but also is an active writer and key contributor.

SPECIFIC RESPONSIBILITIES:

- Serve as the university’s spokesperson in highly sensitive, complex, or emergency situations.
- Manage a comprehensive marketing and communications plan in support of CSUB’s overarching marketing, development and other strategic communications priorities and goals.
- Oversee CSUB’s new social media strategy and outreach using Facebook, Twitter, YouTube, and the CSUB Blog.
- Oversee the writing and production of promotional videos to increase the visibility of CSUB.
- Manage the content presented on the CSUB digital marquee on Stockdale Hwy.
- Consult regularly and work closely with the Vice President for University Advancement to ensure that all communications and publications adhere to strategic themes and guidelines and present a seamless image of the university.
- Work to shape, reinforce and expand a specific image of the university, as defined by its strategic communications objectives, among all of its constituencies with a clear regional focus, providing leadership and setting corollary standards for other university communicators.
- Supervise the editorial and media relations work of the public affairs coordinator/writer, ensuring that assignments and work align consistently with university strategic priorities.
- Develop and maintain a forward-looking, proactive plan of news releases, interviews, articles, and stories together with targeted media that support CSUB strategic communications objectives, while also ensuring that the activities, assignments, and priorities of staff subordinates are consistent with this plan.
- Oversee day-to-day news bureau activities involving management of breaking news, handling of media and other public inquiries, and coordination with the activities, assignments, and priorities of other university personnel.
- Plan and manage a CSUB editorial calendar, aggressively and creatively seeking and capitalizing upon strategic and high-impact publicity and editorial opportunities for CSUB among the pre-determined/published editorial, content, or segment plans for periodicals, local and regional newspapers, and broadcast media.
- Provide consultation and staff advice and support to the president, vice presidents, and university community on public information matters including direct assistance in researching, providing information, and creating messages.
- Develop media resources such as press kits, university fact sheets, backgrounders, databases and lists of university experts.
- Prepare and assign the production of news releases about key university events, programs, and initiatives, ensuring their distribution to the media, and working aggressively to secure placements.
- Regularly contribute articles and serve as editor for Your CSUB and other publications as needed.
- Work collaboratively with media relations staff in the athletics department.
- Develop and maintain effective working relationships with industry and government partners.
- Maintain and serve as contact for the university visual identity guide and editorial standards, including approval of logo use.
- Act as the official university contact for public records act requests and manage responses to each accordingly.
- Serve as chair of the university-wide Public Affairs and Communications – Advisory Committee, and serve on sub-committees as required.
- Respond to requests and participate in activities coordinated by the California State University.
- Participate in selected on-campus and community committees.

REQUIRED QUALIFICATIONS:

- Bachelor’s Degree in Journalism, Communications, or other related field (attach copy of degree/transcripts to employment application). Requires five to seven years of recent (within five years), increasingly responsible professional experience in media communications, public relations, preferably in an institutional marketing, corporate communications, or agency environment, including three years supervisory experience demonstrating the capacity to plan implement, direct, and coordinate a communications program.
