Also, located next to the Runner Cafe is the CSUB Center for Career Education and Community Engagement (CECE), which prepares students for lifelong learning and development through community engagement and career education. The CECE serves students, alumni, community partners, employers, and university personnel. The CECE staff works directly with students to explore their educational and career plans, helping them create an academic-and community-oriented professional road map for success.

7. The Walter Stiern Library is the largest single structure on CSUB's campus named after Walter Stiern, a state senator who authorized many bills, one of which funded CSUB in 1960. It comprises four levels that contain books, computer terminals, 14 study rooms, and 44 faculty offices, and a lower level with five computing facilities, three instructional television studios (ITV), media center, and audio/video/photography labs. The community may obtain a borrowers card to check out books for a fee that can be renewed yearly.

8. The Dorothy Donahoe Hall is the heart of CSUB's campus. Dorothy Donahoe was a civic leader and Assembly woman for California. Her bill helped expand the CSU system and create funding for Bakersfield's campus. This building holds banners on its walls that represent over 100 clubs and organizations at CSUB. Also inside are faculty offices and classrooms for courses in Anthropology, Criminal Justice, Liberal Arts, Psychology, Social Work, Sociology, and Modern Languages.

9. The Doré Theater is named after Frances B. Doré who donated one fourth of a family trust to CSUB to be used for the construction of new buildings. The departments of theatre and music use this theatre to hold musical performances and concerts, as well as theatrical performances all year long. This building allows the Bakersfield community to embrace fine arts of different cultures around the world. Attached to this Building is the Todd Madigan Gallery where exhibits of both traditional and contemporary artworks enrich and expand students' artistic experiences.

10. The Art Department offers a wide variety of instruction and activities in the visual arts. The Visual Arts Center, opened October 24, 2014, replaced the outdated arts structure built in the late '60s. The new 9,000 square foot facility includes specialized studio/lab environments for work in ceramics, sculpture, painting, drawing, and digital art. Activities include welding, forging metal, using solvents, glazing, and firing. The ceramic studio now has several new state-of-the-art kilns, including three new raku kilns and two new "walk-in" kilns.

11. Student Services holds many of California State University, Bakersfield administrative offices. This building houses Admissions and Records, which handles admission to the university, registration of courses, maintenance of student records, and graduation. Also housed here is the Financial Aid office where students can handle all matters dealing with applying for and receiving financial aid. Any student can set appointments and speak to a counselor.

12. The Writing Resource Center offers FREE tutoring for all writing assignments, workshops, and other support services to currently enrolled CSUB students. The staff is trained to focus on improving students' overall skills, not just their grades. They assist students in all stages of assignments to help them learn to think critically about their own writing. The Educational Opportunity Program (EOP) provides special admission for qualified students, particularly low-income, first generation college students. EOP serves as the primary vehicle for the CSU to increase access, academic excellence, and retention of California's historically underserved students, thus working in the spirit and abiding by the legislative intent that originally established the program in 1969 and maintaining the innovation inherent in the program.

13. The Academic Advising & Resource Center offers advising for undeclared students and services to improve academic performance. Located inside is a study hall, computer lab services, and the International Students and Programs Office.

14. The University Outreach & Recruitment is where recruitment, orientations, and campus tours are provided. In addition, Outreach is the first stop to receiving information about the campus.

15. The Romberg Nursing Center was the first building ever constructed in the college/university system without state funding. It includes a lecture room, intensive care unit, seminar rooms, faculty offices, and multipurpose room. Nursing is the only impacted major on campus, thus requiring applicants to maintain a GPA of 3.59.

16. Science Buildings I, II & III host the Biology, Chemistry, Physics, Computer Science, Engineering, Geology, Nursing and Mathematics departments and programs. Located inside the Science I Building is the Head Room, NSME Student Center, Stock Room, NSME Tutoring Centers, and student lounge.
